After the Inaugural and Felicitation, Shri. Prashant Gavade explained to the Students in the first part of Workshop – Concept of Apiculture; Ecological and economical Importance of honeybees; Honey yielding different bee families; Types of honeybees and their habits, habitat and nesting behaviour; Life cycle of honeybees; the caste system and division of labour followed by honeybees; Role of different castes in maintaining the colony; Difference between the different species; Economically important and cultivable bee species in Indian environment. Shri. Gavade and Shri. Kshirsagar also showed and explained the rearing equipments like Langstroth Bee box, Honey extractor, smoker, overall, bee gloves, high boots and bee veil used in beekeeping to the students

Shri. Gavade explaining the different equipments used in Apiculture or Beekeeping

While dealing with the practical part of the Workshop related to Apiculture, he explained Honey production and storage process done by bee; Difference between ripe and unripe honey; Extraction of honey from sealed honey frames.

He also explained the beeswax extraction, bee venom extraction, royal jelly extraction and pollen extraction by showing the students the pollen trap used for extracting pollens loaded by honeybees and rearing cups used for artificial queen rearing process and collection of royal jelly.

Artificial Queen rearing and Royal jelly collection cups Pollen traps used for pollen collection from honeybees

Shri. Gavade and Kshirsagar also explained that depending upon the seasons and availability of nectar and pollens, the honeybees show certain behaviour which need to be identified by the beekeeper. In order to sustain the bee colony in an apiary, the beekeeper also needs to have knowledge of Seasonal and Scientific Management of bees,

Status of Beekeeping in the world and in India, Requirements for Apiculture setup and different Government schemes made available to entrepreneurs in Apiculture were also explained to students..

Uses of soaps

1. Soaps are mainly used as surfactant for washing, bathing and cleaning. Soaps safely remove germs, soil and other contaminants and help us to stay healthy and make our surrounding more pleasant.
2. Soaps are also used in textile spinning and are important components of lubricants.
3. Soaps are key components of most lubricating greases, which are usually emulsion of calcium soap or lithium soap and mineral oil.
4. Soaps are very important for effective hand washing and hygiene, but if it is not available in difficult situation then clean ash or sand/soil can be used as substitute as recommended by World Health Organization (WHO).
5. Metallic soaps made up of calcium and sodium are used as thickeners.
